

Fortlake Sigma Opportunities Fund

Monthly Fact Sheet— May 2026

Portfolio Running Yield currently stands at 13.12%. One-year returns are strong at 6.90% (net) and since inception the strategy's performance has maintained an 8.09% (net) return.

Risk assets rallied broadly, with equities meaningfully outperforming credit as markets pushed higher and Investment Grade (IG) spreads ground tighter still. Strength in the AI complex continued to underwrite the equity market, insulating it from the inflation concerns building on the back of elevated oil prices. While this rotation favoured equity beta over credit, the Fund still delivered a strong outcome. Moves in both US and Australian rates worked in our favour, with the duration we added back in March continuing to deliver as front-end yields consolidated.

Positive Fund performance was significantly influenced by the Liberty Interactive default we wrote about last month, which has now settled at auction, at a price of 6.25 cents in the dollar. The settlement price illustrates the continuous movement toward structurally lower recovery rates in the high yield (HY) complex, reflecting an asset base weighted toward intangibles and technology.

Distress continues to build across the leveraged universe. Increasingly, we see the market shifting away from a correlated default environment, where stress hits broadly and all at once, towards an idiosyncratic one, where defaults emerge name by name on company-specific issues. This plays directly to the Fund's strength in identifying and harvesting individual defaults. We retain our hedges across HY given the unresolved issues we see in private loans and leveraged structured products.

The Fund remains well positioned to tolerate successive shocks and to capture further defaults should they materialise. We retain our view that, so long as global front-end rates remain elevated, this should continue to bring forward stress across much of the leveraged universe.
